A man is said to have an ideal education, who knows something of everything, and everything of something.

The L. N. S. band is active, and music is the order of the day. The boys seem to be very much interested, and the band plays now as well as it has ever done before. We hope all the present members will stay during the spring term; when recruits are to be put into the ranks there will always be a break.

The winter term of school closes March 29. Most of the students are going away to spend vacation with friends or relatives, to return to their duties again on April 4. Some will not be with us during the spring term, because they are needed at home, while others are going to different parts of the country to teach school.

Many of our students have not joined our literary society. They seem to be afraid of something. We think that every student should be required to join the literary society. It will give them a training that will be of great value to them and that can scarcely be secured in any other way.

Well, this is the beginning. The Lutheran Normal School Mirror enters with this issue upon the first year of its existence. We hope it will exert a good influence in making the people better acquainted with our school and the work done here. The paper is edited by the students, and we hope that it will benefit us by teaching us how to express our thoughts readily and accurately.

Each issue of The Mirror will contain a contribution from some friend of the school, on some subject that will be of interest to the public in general and to school teachers in particular.

If a copy of The Lutheran Normal School Mirror reaches you it is with the wish that you will subscribe for it. It will be published about the twentieth of each month and will cost 25 cents for the four issues of this school year. After that it will cost 50 cents a year.

A man who has studied how to live has learned how to die.—Welsh.

The Easter number of the Illustrated Home Journal is very artistic. Its story, "Easter Bells" is splendid.

"My sister's got a camera," announced Ted. "Huh!" said George, not wishing to be out done, "My sister could play on a camera before you were born.—Youths' Companion.