Let yourself soar

Fearless group leaders huddle together, bracing each other for what was to come. There's a change in the air that everyone could feel. It's the beginning of another academic year, meaning that there would soon be hords of new un-oriented students, freshmen, transfers, and non-traditionals, needing guidance that only those who have gone before can give. The week promised to be truly an unforgettable experience for everyone involved, starting with a welcome by our own President Nelsen. Some of the week's activities included a very large marshmallow roast (not a bonfire), a trip to the Zoo and a picnic with frozen hotdogs, and learning "how to survive college and enjoy it". Hard work and sweat helped the winners of the road rally and everyone enjoyed the Hawaiian Luau. The crowds went wild as they cheered on their favorite team as the induced the agony of defeat or enjoyed the thrill of victory in the Olympics. The week ended with the Frosh Varieties Show. But I hear the protests of freshmen one and all, "What about the early morning breakfast, don't forget about that!" Yes, how could we overlook the beauty that the morning brings for some people. The competition was fierce for the hairiest chest (Mr. Macho), hairiest legs, and baby doll p.j.'s. The morning was topped off by the pageant and crowning of Beanie Queen Judy Nelson and Beanie King Darin Corcoran.

1) New members of the Augustana World intent on learning, even on the first day.
2) Little do these freshmen know the horror that await them. Vicki Savage.
3) What do you mean this is the advantage they forgot to tell us about! Dave Bartel.
4) Aloha via Augustana.
5) What exactly are we suppose to be checking for? And we have to move all this back home again in May?
